

Tentative of History of In/Exfiltrations into/from France during WWII from 1940 to 1945 (Border Crossings, Parachutes, Planes PU & Sea Landings)

Forewords

This tentative of history of civilians and military agents (BCRA, Commandos, JEDBURGHS, OSS, SAS, SIS, SOE, SUSSEX/OSSEX, Sussex/Brissex/SIS & PROUST) infiltrated or exfiltrated during the WWII into France, by parachute, by plane landings, by sea landings and/or by crossing on foot the Spanish border via the Pyrénées

The Ordre de la Libération is France's second national Order after the Legion of Honour, and was instituted by General De Gaulle, Leader of the "Français Libres" - the Free French movement - with Edict No. 7, signed in Brazzaville on November 16th, 1940.

1,032 men and 6 women were rewarded Compagnons de la Libération.

The last Compagnon de la Libération Hubert Germain passed away at the age of 101 on Tuesday, October 12, 2021.

Of the 174 Compagnons de la Libération agents from French Secret Services, 60 died on mission (34%). Jean Moulin succumbed to torture, 12 were shot and 17 executed, 10 perished in deportation and 8 accidentally, 12 others committed suicide. 7. History of Carpetbaggers (USAAF) partly available on Thomas Ensminger's website addresses:

<http://www.801492.org/MainMenu.htm>

<http://www.801492.org/Air%20Crew/Crewz.htm>

I was informed that Thomas Ensminger passed away on the 03/05/2012. I like to underline the huge work performed as historian by Thomas to keep alive the memory the Carpetbaggers' history and their famous B24D modified and painted in glossy black. RIP Thomas.

The USAAF Carpetbagger's mission was that of delivering supplies and agents to resistance groups in the enemy occupied Western European nations. Created in late 1943, their operations first flew from Tempsford, then Alconbury and finally out of Station 179, Harrington (9.0 km West of Kettering in Northamptonshire). Flying at first as two squadrons, they were given Provisional status as a Bombardment Group (801st) in late March 1944 just before they moved to Harrington. In May of 1944 two more squadrons were added to the group. In August of 1944, the group was redesignated as a formal group (492nd).

Squadron designations were changed as well, becoming as follows for the duration of the war:

- 36th BS changed to 856th BS
- 406th BS changed to 858th BS
- 788th BS changed to 859th BS
- 850th BS changed to 857th BS

Over five hundred members of the BCRA, Jedburghs, OSS, Proust, SAS, SIS, SOE and Sussex agents were inserted by the Carpetbaggers during the period of March 1944 through April of 1945.

Most of mission reports of Carpetbaggers' crews can be downloaded from the Thomas Ensminger's huge data bank (<http://www.801492.org/Air%20Crew/Crewz.htm>).

NB: The whole Carpetbaggers' crew mission reports were kindly provided by Thomas Ensminger.

There is a Carpetbaggers museum located near Harrington (Northamptonshire – Great Britain):

8. History of the RAF squadrons:

The two Bob Body's websites related to RAF 138 and 161 Squadrons on website addresses:

<http://www.tempsford-squadrons.info/>

<http://www.161squadron.org/>

There were two RAF No 138 and 161 Special Duties Squadrons based at Tempsford airfield (3.7 km north east of Sandy, Bedfordshire). Both were involved in these highly secret operations, that ranged over all of enemy occupied Europe, dropping agents or supplies. Losses were very high, with up to one aircraft per week being lost at some points during the war. Missions were concentrated on the "moon nights" of each month at the beginning, where a full moon allowed for better night vision for the pilots. Since 1943, location device Rebecca (Plane) / Eureka (DZ), <http://www.iwm.org.uk/collections/item/object/1060003707>, was used whatever the weather.

NB2 : Steven Kippax kindly provided some archives (Air 40/2659 – Air resources made available to SIS) concerning the 106 SIS pick-up operations carried out by RAF 161 Squadron.

NB3: Mail bags fastened to an horizontal cable located at 2 metre height were picked up by Lysanders by means of hook during special night operations called MPU (Mail Pick Up)

NB4: In December 1943, RAF 138 and 161 squadrons were joined by 214 and 617; in February 1944 by 90 and 149; in March by 75, 199, 295*, 296*, 297* and 298*; and in April by 570*, 644*, 190* and 299* in which month USAAF units also started Special Duties. Units marked* were part of 38 Group and operated in pairs:- 190+620, 196+299, 298+644, 295+570 and 296+297.

11. History of Jedburghs:

The name JEDBURGH comes from a small town of Scotland. JEDBURGH was a special forces operation carried out by the Allied during WWII, which aimed to coordinate the action of the Resistance with the general plans of the Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Forces (SHAEPF) and to provide weapons and training to the Resistance, in France, in Belgium and in the Netherlands, in order to prevent the German to reinforce the Normandy coasts at the time of D-Day. Men of the British Special Operations Executive (SOE), of the American Office of Strategic Services (OSS), and of Free French Bureau Central de Renseignements and d'Action (BCRA) as well as soldiers of the various armies of the countries concerned (France, Belgium, Netherlands) were parachuted in uniform (Some teams were dropped in civilian clothes such as Arnold Team), by teams of three, behind the German lines, to lead actions of sabotage and guerrilla against the Germans, and to coordinate actions of the Resistance.

About 100 Jedburgh teams were dropped into France, Belgium and Holland between June and December 1944.

The Jedburgh Teams had in Europe:

- 14 members killed in action.
- 5 members dead from injuries, shot when prisoners or by accident.
- 3 members killed due to bad dropping or parachute failure.
- 11 members severely injured during fighting.
- 4 members injured due to bad dropping.
- 4 prisoners who escaped.

Dominique Soulier is at the origin of the memory work started 28 years ago (1991) in memory of the agents of the plan Sussex 1944 and of his father Georges Soulier WT of the team Sussex «Vis» (Ossex/OSS).

He met for several years the actors of these missions and collected a great deal of information, memories and documents. Secretary of the Sussex Plan Association until the disappearance of the last agents, he is the creator of the site plan Sussex, of the museum «Collections Sussex 1944» exhibited at MM PARK in La Wantzenau. Also author of two books dedicated to these secret missions.

Patrick Habersack-Bechtel grandson of the Sussex agent William Bechtel @Louis Bonnet & Pierre Tillet son of the Sussex agent Michel Tillet @Marcel Treville provide invaluable help for the knowledge of the agents of the Sussex and Proust Plans as well as their secret missions. Thanks to their hard work and the regularly updated table « Tentative of History of WWII Infiltrations into France 1940-1945 », the very secret missions Sussex and Proust come out of the shadows. Many individuals and families can begin more "personal" research as a result of this work

Sussex Teams (January - September 1944): SUSSEX Plan was an intelligence operation in World War II in which men from the French Intelligence Bureau Central de Renseignements and d'Action (BCRA) were dropped into France from January to September 1944. (See Memories of a Free French Secret Agent written by Gilbert Renault @Rémy @Roulier).

Commander Kenneth Cohen for SIS (England), Colonel Francis Pickens Miller for OSS (USA) and Gilbert Renault (Rémy) for BCRA (France) were in charge of the SUSSEX Plan.

Each of the 54 SUSSEX teams (29 OSSEX, 25 BRISSEX teams) of an officer and a WT operator. (118 men and 2 women) to supply update, independent, reliable and accurate information to the Allied Head Quarters in order to take the relevant decisions.

After the war the surviving agents used to meet for a monthly reunion dinner at Madame Goubillon's café, located 8 rue Tournefort in the 5th arrondissement, which they painted and renamed "Café du Network Sussex". Sadly the cafe is no more, Madame Goubillon died in the 1980s and the premises were transformed into a piano bar. In 1990, however, the mayor of the fifth arrondissement unveiled a plaque commemorating the role the cafe and its owner played during the war. (<http://www.aerosteles.net/fiche.php?code=paris-sussex>)

The volume 3 "Secret Intelligence Branch: SUSSEX" of roll n°4 of « History of the London Office of the OSS » ref : M-1623 of NARA gave some information concerning the Plan SUSSEX, but unfortunately the Sussex/Brissex/SIS agents' reports are missing (pages 241 to 479). US Archives NARA provided some mission reports of Sussex/Ossex/OSS teams.

Some Sussex/Ossex/OSS agents have a personal file available from NARA Database, using the search engine: <https://catalog.archives.gov/>.

2 Pathfinders teams and 52 Sussex teams (25 BRISSEX/SIS & 29 OSSEX/OSS) were dropped from February to September 1944.

Designed by Captain Guy Wingate, the badge reminds:

- 1944 for the SUSSEX Plan year
 - Flags for the tripartite plan (UK/SIS, F/BCRA & US/OSS)
 - Colour Black for night drops
 - Parachute with Lorraine cross for French agents dropped.
- Each badge bears a number corresponding to agent's drop order.

Sussex Badge n°34 (34th drop) of Georges Soulier @Gérard Boudemange (Vis Team)

The WT operators of Sussex/Brissex teams reported to SIS station STS 53a or STS 53b and the WT operators of Sussex/Ossex to OSS station Victor.

The "Carpetbaggers" infiltrated about 49 SUSSEX agents and the RAF 59. Most of Carpetbaggers' operations had names of car manufacturers: Ansaldo, Bentley, Benz, Cord, Desoto, Ellis, Lincoln, Plymouth, etc.

Joseph Kessel and André Bernheim carried out Ginger communication missions with Klaxon (Klaxon was designed by SIS section VIII for use at much higher altitude and longer range than S Phone designed by SOE) with Sussex teams during B25 Mitchell patrols of RAF 226 Sqn (Special Signals Flight). Pierre Bourgoïn (CL), Joseph Kessel & Adrien Conus (CL) went to GB by plane from Marrakech around the 01/10/1943.

SUSSEX teams had 14 agents died either on mission or in deportation, including a woman named Evelyne Clopet. 17 locally recruited staff members died either on mission or in deportation. Jacques Voyer received the Cross of the Liberation.

Jeannette Guyot is one of only two women decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross (USA) during the Second World War second highest American decoration after the Congressional medal. Virginia Hall is the other woman who worked for the OS.S. The elementary school of G nelard (Sa ne & Loire) bears the name of Jeannette-Guyot.

Sussex agents participated in the liberation of Paris with the «T-Force» commanded by Colonel US Tompkins.

After the war, the surviving agents used to meet once a month for a diner in a caf , located 8 rue Tournefort in the 5th arrondissement Paris, where they had been hidden by Madame Goubillon. This caf  had been repainted and christened the «Caf  du R seau Sussex» by the English SOE. Unfortunately, this caf  no longer exists and Madame Goubillon died in the 1980s. The mayor of the 5th arrondissement unveiled a plaque commemorating the role of the caf  and its owner during the war.

Proust Plan (February – September 1944): An auxiliary joint operation only conducted by French BCRA and US OSS to the Sussex plan to build up a reserve pool of agents for any unforeseen exigencies of the post D-Day period and eventually became operational.

Each Proust agent was trained as W/T operator and intelligence observer agent.

The volume 4 "Secret Intelligence Branch - PROUST" of roll n 4 of « History of the London Office of the OSS » ref: M-1623 of NARA gave some information concerning the Plan PROUST, but unfortunately the agents' reports are missing (pages 51 to 188).

The PROUST missions were: Driver/Ascain, Monkey, Girafe, Midiron (sub-missions: Norman, No l, Potage, Noir, Cong , Poil, Jument and Mar chal), Jambon, Mirmaloy, Voyageur, Bebe, Chat, Image, Marquise and Marcel.

Proust Badge n°21 of Jacques Suissa @Jacques Grenier @Gravet @Saniette

The WT operators of Sussex/Ossex reported to OSS Victor station (NARA M1623-Roll1-Target 3-Volume 3 - Station Victor)

The "Carpetbaggers" dropped forty-six PROUST agents into France for SI/London.

Sussex & Proust agents took part in the HEBE missions in Germany in 1945, which aimed to obtain military, economic and political information by questioning all prisoners of war, political deportees and escaped workers and also identify and prohibit as far as possible the entry into France of suspicious or enemy elements.

Some Sussex and Proust were involved in Far East missions (Commando Conus, missions Kay 1 & 2, Force 136).

NB: The very numerous and extremely rare Sussex and Proust collections can be seen in the new museum MM PARK (Military Museum Park).

This museum is situated in La Wantzenau (12 km North of Strasbourg), presents on 7000m² a very big variety of artefacts and equipments of among which 120 military and armoured vehicles, uniforms, individual and collective weapons, artillery and also a renovated Luftwaffe 20 m, U-Boot coning tower, underwater mine, or more, visits of an observation Atlantic Wall bell via an underground corridor.

MM PARK is the biggest collection of Europe dedicated to the Second World War. It was officially inaugurated on the 04/03/2017.

13. The Steven Kippax's website dedicated to Special Operations Executive (SOE) (This is a restricted group)

<https://groups.io/g/specialoperationsexecutive>

This Group is designed to share and disseminate information of the Special Operations Executive during WWII.

Special Operations Executive (SOE): The Special Operations Executive (SOE), sometimes referred to as "the Baker Street Irregulars" after Sherlock Holmes's fictional group of spies, was a World War II organization. It was initiated by Winston Churchill and Hugh Dalton on the 19/07/1940 to conduct warfare by means other than direct military engagement.

The organisation was formed out of three existing secret departments:

- Section D, a sub-section of the Secret Intelligence Service (SIS, @MI6) commanded by Major Lawrence Grand;
- A department of the War Office known as MI R headed by Major J. C. Holland;
- Department EH, the propaganda organisation called (from Electra House, its headquarters), run by Sir Campbell Stuart. SOE directly employed or controlled just over 13,000 people and about 1338 agents were killed. It is estimated that, worldwide, SOE supported or supplied about a million operatives.

SOE's operations in France were directed by six London-based country sections:

- AMF Section was established in Algiers during the latter part of 1942 to operate into Southern France.
- DF Section was responsible for establishing escape routes.
- EU/P which dealt with the Polish community in France
- F Section was under British control (Colonel Maurice Buckmaster). In France, there were 95 circuits "Buck". By the terms of an agreement made with De Gaulle SOE F could not recruit French agents. (Buckmaster Maurice – They Fought Alone – page 95)
- RF Section (1 Dorset Square Marylebone – Alliance House - London NW1 6PU – There is a plaque): Captain Erik Piquet-Wicks replaced by James Hutchinson since August 1942 then by Bickham Sweet-Escott since Autumn 1943 then by LH Dismore, helped by Forest Yeo-Thomas was linked to General De Gaulle's Free French government in exile. Most native French agents served in RF.

- Jedburgh teams.

Tentative of History of In/Exfiltrations into/from France during WWII from 1940 to 1945 (Border Crossings, Parachutes, Planes PU & Sea Landings)

SOE was formed to "co-ordinate, to inspire, to control and to assist the nationals of the oppressed countries who must themselves be the direct participants".

From 1941 to 1945, SOE organized about 3733 parachute landings and 81 pick-up operations (Lysander, Hudson or Dakota) into France:

- About 470 SOE agents, including 39 women, were sent out into France. Among Section F, a monument in Valençay is dedicated to 104 of whom were killed in action or executed (13 women), 30 escaped and 12 were released. They were "closely harnessed to the military effort" and "played a very considerable part in our complete and final victory."
- 5 007 000 kg of equipment including 104 536 Sten submachine guns, 409 224 grenades and 307 023 kg of explosives were dropped.

SOE F section disbanded on January 15, 1946, with many of its agents moving to MI6.

SOE was known publicly by a cover name: the Inter-Services Research Bureau (ISRB)

The SOE F Section Memorial of Valençay (Indre - France) was inaugurated on 6th May 1991, the fiftieth anniversary of the despatch of F Section's first agent to France, by Monsieur André Méric, Secretary of State for Veteran Affairs, in the presence of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth The Queen Mother. The Valençay monument commemorates by name 91 men and 13 women, all agents of F Section of S.O.E., who lost their lives - most of them in concentration camps - as a result of their work with the French Resistance.
